

KIMBERLY POLOSON

Kimberly Poloson is a self-taught artist whose work reflects a passion of nature, old world charm, art antiques and found funky objects. Her art reflects her love of life, with its many layers, textures and interesting juxtapositions within any given day. She is also inspired by simple day-to-day living: a singing bird, a laughing child, the smell of rain, and always the sound of music.

Kimberly was born in Northern Michigan. Her earliest memories are of rock collecting on the shores of the Great Lakes. She has also lived in Hawaii and California. Presently she makes her home in the Pacific Northwest with her pilot husband, teenage daughter and two entertaining dachshunds.
